Item 1.01. Entry into a Material Definitive Agreement.

Background

On October 3, 2006, Axonyx Inc. (Axonyx) completed its business combination with TorreyPines Therapeutics, Inc. (TPTX), in accordance with the terms of the Agreement and Plan of Merger and Reorganization among Axonyx, Autobahn Acquisition, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Axonyx, and TPTX, dated as of June 7, 2006 (the Merger Agreement) pursuant to which TPTX became a wholly owned subsidiary of Axonyx (the Merger). As a result of the Merger, Axonyx changed its name to TorreyPines Therapeutics, Inc. (TorreyPines) and TPTX changed its name to TPTX, Inc. Following the closing of the Merger, the business conducted by TorreyPines became primarily the business conducted by TPTX immediately prior to the Merger and the following TPTX agreements and arrangements effectively became material agreements and arrangements of TorreyPines.

Material TorreyPines Agreements

Alliance and Collaboration Agreements

Eli Lilly & Co.

In April 2003, TPTX entered into an agreement with Eli Lilly & Company, or Eli Lilly, to obtain an exclusive license to Eli Lilly's AMPA/kainate, or AK, antagonist assets including its lead drug candidate, tezampanel, and NGX426. TPTX paid Eli Lilly an up-front license fee of $6 million under the agreement. If specified development, regulatory and commercial milestones are achieved, TPTX will be obligated to make milestone payments to Eli Lilly. TPTX is also obligated to pay royalties to Eli Lilly on any sales of tezampanel and NGX426. TPTX is required to use commercially reasonable efforts to develop and commercialize the product candidates subject to the agreement, including use of commercially reasonable efforts to achieve specified development events within specified timeframes.

Under the agreement, if TPTX decides to sublicense its rights to commercialize any of the product candidates licensed to it under the agreement in the United States or all of its rights under the agreement worldwide, it is obligated first to provide Eli Lilly the opportunity to negotiate to obtain those rights. Eli Lilly must notify TPTX of its interest in exercising its negotiation rights within a specified period and, if it is interested, has a specified period from the date of TPTX's original notice to negotiate a mutually acceptable agreement. If an agreement is not reached within that time, TPTX is free to enter an agreement with the outside party as long as the terms of that agreement are superior to the terms last offered by Eli Lilly.

The term of the agreement will continue until all royalty payment obligations have expired, unless the agreement is earlier terminated. Eli Lilly may terminate the agreement for any uncured material breach of the agreement by TPTX, including any breach of its diligence obligations, or if TPTX goes into bankruptcy or makes a general assignment of its assets to its creditors. If Eli Lilly terminates the agreement for any of these reasons, all of the rights granted to TPTX under the agreement will revert to Eli Lilly, and TPTX is obligated to grant Eli Lilly a non-exclusive license to any of TPTX's proprietary technology necessary to develop and commercialize tezampanel and NGX426 and to any regulatory documentation it may have regarding the products. Eli Lilly is obligated to pay TPTX a royalty on any sales of tezampanel and NGX426 until TPTX has received a maximum specified amount from Eli Lilly. Eli Lilly may also terminate the agreement if there is a force majeure event that prevents TPTX from performing its obligations under the agreement, or if there is a change of control of TPTX, unless the party acquiring TPTX in the change of control undertakes all of its obligations under the agreement. If Eli Lilly terminates the agreement for any of these reasons, Eli Lilly and TPTX will negotiate in good faith reasonable compensation from Eli Lilly to TPTX for use of any of TPTX's proprietary technology or regulatory documentation by Eli Lilly.

Life Science Research Israel

In May 2004, TPTX entered into an agreement with Life Science Research Israel, or LSRI, to obtain an exclusive license to their muscarinic agonist assets including its lead drug candidate for Alzheimer's Disease, or AD, NGX267, and NGX292. No up-front license fee was paid. For the first two years of the agreement, TPTX provided specified amounts of research funding to LSRI. To date, TPTX has paid LSRI approximately $2.15 million upon achievement of specified development milestones. If additional specified development, regulatory and commercial milestones are achieved, TPTX will be obligated to make milestone payments to LSRI, which may total up to an additional $18.25 million. TPTX is also obligated to pay royalties to LSRI on sales of NGX267 and NGX292 and to pay LSRI a percentage of specified payments it receives upon sublicensing rights to either compound, subject to a minimum amount payable to LSRI for the first sublicense. If TPTX sublicenses rights to a compound after a specified point in development of the compound, LSRI will select the level of royalty and sublicense payments from among alternatives provided in the agreement. TPTX is required to use commercially reasonable efforts to develop and commercialize the product candidates subject to the agreement, including use of commercially reasonable efforts to achieve specified development events within specified timeframes.

The term of the agreement will continue until all payment obligations have expired, unless the agreement is earlier terminated. LSRI may terminate the agreement for uncured material breach of the agreement by TPTX, including any breach of TPTX's diligence obligations, or if TPTX goes into bankruptcy, makes a general assignment of its assets to its creditors, or dissolves or winds up its business. If TPTX terminates the agreement other than for uncured material breach of the agreement by LSRI or bankruptcy, general assignment of assets to creditors, dissolution or winding up of LSRI, all of the rights granted to TPTX under the agreement will revert to LSRI, and TPTX is obligated to provide LSRI data generated on NGX267 and NGX292 and grant LSRI a non-exclusive license to any of TPTX's intellectual property that is necessary to develop and commercialize NGX267 and NGX292. LSRI is obligated to pay TPTX a royalty on any sales of NGX267 and NGX292 if the termination occurs after a specified level of development has been completed.

Eisai Ltd.

Since March 2001, TPTX has had an ongoing relationship with Eisai Ltd., or Eisai, with respect to TPTX's AD drug and target discovery programs.

2005 AD Genetics Research Program Cooperation Agreement

In October 2005, TPTX entered into a cooperation agreement with Eisai to continue to work together on TPTX's AD genetics research program that focuses on the discovery of genes responsible for late onset AD. The agreement has a two-year term and may be extended by Eisai for up to an additional 12 months. Under the agreement, Eisai is funding TPTX's work regarding the genetics program and Eisai has exclusive, time-limited rights of first negotiation and refusal for gene targets discovered and validated in the course of the genetics program. The payments TPTX may receive under this agreement total approximately $15 million which includes research support and a cash payment for the first negotiation and refusal, and an extension fee if Eisai chooses to extend the agreement.

During the term of the agreement, if TPTX decides to consider the sale of all of its business, or any portion of its business that includes the genetics program technology, through a merger, sale of assets or similar transaction, TPTX must first notify Eisai and Eisai has a time-limited right to discuss a proposal for such a transaction with TPTX, which right terminates upon the initial public offering of common stock of TPTX.

Under the agreement, both TPTX and Eisai have limited termination rights. In an event that Eisai is in breach of the agreement or TPTX is in breach of the agreement, both parties must attend an alternative dispute hearing in order to attempt to resolve the breach. If after the hearing, the party in breach is unable or unwilling to resolve the breach, the non-breaching party may terminate the agreement. There is no other right of termination by either TPTX or Eisai under the agreement.

2005 Amyloid Beta Collaboration Agreement

In February 2005, TPTX entered into a collaboration agreement with Eisai regarding TPTX's program for discovery of novel, small molecule compounds designed to delay the onset or slow the progression of AD. The agreement has a two-year term and may be extended by Eisai for up to an additional 12 months. TPTX has received a $10 million cash payment from Eisai in consideration of the rights granted to Eisai under the agreement. Under the agreement, Eisai has exclusive, time-limited rights of first negotiation and refusal for compounds discovered in the course of the program.

During the term of the agreement, if TPTX decides to consider the sale of all of its business, or any portion of its business that includes the genetics program technology, through a merger, sale of assets or similar transaction, TPTX must first notify Eisai and Eisai has a time-limited right to discuss a proposal for such a transaction with TPTX, which right terminates upon the initial public offering of common stock of TPTX.

Under the agreement, both TPTX and Eisai have limited termination rights. In the event that Eisai is in breach of the agreement or TPTX is in breach of the agreement, both parties must attend an alternative dispute hearing in order to attempt to resolve the breach. If after the hearing, the party in breach is unable or unwilling to resolve the breach, the non-breaching party may terminate the agreement. There is no other right of termination by either TPTX or Eisai under the agreement.

University of Iowa Research Foundation

TPTX has a license agreement with University of Iowa Research Foundation, or UIRF, pursuant to which UIRF has granted to TPTX an exclusive (except as to UIRF and any of its non-exclusive licensees for research purposes) license in the United States, with the right to sublicense, to certain patents and patent applications relating to spinal administration of tezampanel.

If specified regulatory and patent-related milestones are achieved, TPTX will be obligated to make milestone payments to UIRF which may total up to $400,000. TPTX must also pay UIRF an annual license maintenance fee against which other payments made by TPTX to UIRF under the agreement may be credited. TPTX is also obligated to pay royalties to UIRF on any sales of tezampanel using the licensed patent rights and to pay UIRF a percentage of specified payments it receives upon sublicensing rights to the licensed patent rights. TPTX is required to use commercially reasonable efforts to commercialize products using the licensed patent rights.

This agreement will continue until the expiration of the last to expire of the licensed patents and patent applications unless earlier terminated. UIRF may terminate the agreement for uncured breach of the agreement by TPTX, including any breach of TPTX's diligence obligations, or if TPTX goes into bankruptcy, makes a general assignment of its assets to its creditors, or dissolves or winds up its business.

Johnson & Johnson Development Corporation

TPTX has an agreement with Johnson & Johnson Development Corporation, or JJDC, regarding TPTX's development work into the effects of using M1 agonists in the treatment of CNS diseases and disorders. Upon completion of a specified level of development of TPTX's lead M1 agonist, TPTX is obligated to provide results for the compound to JJDC.

For a specified period following receipt of the results, or at an earlier time as agreed to by JJDC and TPTX, JJDC has the exclusive right to negotiate with TPTX regarding any sale, transfer, license or other distribution of any TPTX's intellectual property rights or products related to TPTX's M1 agonist program, referred to as an M1 agonist transaction. If an agreement is not reached within that time, then during a specified period after the end of the period of negotiation with JJDC, TPTX may enter in an agreement with a third party regarding an M1 agonist transaction on terms that are more favorable to TPTX than the terms last proposed by JJDC. If, however, during the specified period after the end of the period of negotiation with JJDC, TPTX proposes to enter in an agreement with a third party regarding an M1 agonist transaction on terms that are equivalent to or less favorable to TPTX than the terms last proposed by JJDC, TPTX must first offer JJDC the right to enter into an agreement with TPTX on the terms proposed by the third party. If JJDC notifies TPTX that it wishes to complete an M1 agonist transaction on the terms offered by the third party within a specified notice period, then the parties will negotiate an agreement on those terms during a specified negotiation period. If JJDC does not notify TPTX that it wishes to complete an M1 agonist transaction on the terms offered by the third party within the specified notice period or if the parties are not able to enter into an agreement on those terms within a specified negotiation period, TPTX is free to enter an agreement with the third party as long as the terms of that agreement are no less favorable to TPTX than the terms presented to JJDC. JJDC's rights as described above terminate at the end of the specified period after the end of the period of negotiation with JJDC, or, if TPTX notifies JJDC during that period of a proposed M1 agonist transaction with a third party on terms that are equivalent to or less favorable to TPTX than the terms last proposed by JJDC, the rights terminate at the end of a new designated period for JJDC and TPTX to negotiate an agreement upon such new terms.

JJDC may assign its rights under the agreement to one of its affiliates. The provisions of the agreement do not apply to, or restrict TPTX with respect to, any sale of all or substantially all of the business or assets of TPTX. TPTX will, however, remain subject to the terms of the agreement following any such transaction effected during the term of the agreement, including the transaction with Axonyx.

The foregoing description of the terms and conditions of the agreements with each of Eli Lilly, LSRI, Eisai, UIRF and JJDC set forth herein does not purport to be complete and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of each such document attached hereto as Exhibits 10.1, 10.2, 10.3, 10.4, 10.5 and 10.6, respectively, and are incorporated by reference herein.
