Subj: Broadcom Update

A few weeks ago, Broadcom announced that it had nominated a slate of candidates to replace Qualcomm's current Board of Directors at our 2018 Annual Meeting of Stockholders. Today we issued a press release announcing that our Board unanimously determined not to nominate any of Broadcom's candidates for election. After thorough review, the Board concluded that Broadcom's nominees are inherently conflicted and would not bring incremental skills or expertise to the Qualcomm Board.

We also announced in our press release that we filed our preliminary proxy statement with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, which includes our intention to nominate our 11 incumbent directors for re-election as well as important information for our stockholders to consider before voting their shares. The filing of a proxy statement is part of our regular engagement with our stockholders ahead of an annual meeting.

Lastly, our Board recently adopted a Non-Executive Officer Change in Control Severance Plan to provide financial protection to non-executive employees in the event of a qualifying termination of employment. This is a step taken by many companies to support and retain employees and should not be viewed in any way to signal a new development with regard to Broadcom's proposal or nominations. Our intent is to help remove uncertainty and concern where we can. Michelle Sterling, EVP, Human Resources, will be sending additional information about the plan shortly.

As a reminder, if you receive questions from the media, customers or vendors, please direct those inquiries to our Corporate Communications department (Clare Conley, cconley@qti.qualcomm.com).

I want to thank all employees for their perseverance and dedication during this past year. Together, we made great strides in 2017 to accelerate our strategy, deliver on one of the best product roadmaps we've ever had, and lay the foundation for 5G. As we head into the New Year, let's continue to remain focused on executing our strategy and leading the industry with our innovations.

Steve
