BT AFFIRMS ITS STRATEGY

BT is today holding a conference for city analysts and investors aimed at providing greater detail about the strategy outlined by the company last year and what it will deliver for customers and shareholders.

BT will continue to defend vigorously its core revenues while delivering major improvements in efficiency. Organic growth will come from new wave areas with BT building on its success in broadband, ICT and global solutions and moving into areas such as mobility. In addition our 21st Century Network transformation programme will deliver significant benefits for customers and reduce long-term costs for BT.

The event will be webcast and starts at 9:00am with an overview presented by chief executive Ben Verwaayen.

Edgar Filing: BT GROUP PLC - Form 6-K

Group finance director Ian Livingston, said: "Today is all about providing a greater depth of understanding of the activities that will contribute to future revenues and profits. We will provide an insight into how BT will continue with its strategy of defending the core and growing new wave revenues, while maintaining strong financial discipline."

There will be no change to BT Group targets although the financial information disclosed will give some additional granularity to existing targets for 2004/05 and provide additional guidance on areas such as network modernisation.

- more than GBP1billion of incremental revenue from ICT products and services between 2001/02 and 2004/05.
- around GBP300m of annual revenue from mobility by 2005
- new cash cost savings, reaching GBP1billion p.a. by 2008/09 from investment in 21st Century Network.
- Global Services becoming cash flow positive during 2004.

BT also intends to build upon its 1 million broadband customers, targeting 5 million customers by 2006, equating to around GBP1billion of profitable revenue annually.

NEWS RELEASE

June 16, 2003

BT AND YAHOO! COME TOGETHER TO DELIVER

WORLD-CLASS INTERNET SERVICE

BT has joined forces with Yahoo! to launch a completely new internet experience to beat its rivals and enhance its position as the UK's leading broadband internet service provider (ISP) in the ADSL sector.

Under the alliance, BT Openworld will undergo a major transformation to enhance its broadband service which will be re-named BT Yahoo! Broadband.

Edgar Filing: BT GROUP PLC - Form 6-K

BT Yahoo! Broadband promises to take rival ISPs, such as AOL and Freeserve head on by offering customers the best value package for a service of this kind in the UK.

Designed specifically to enhance the power of ADSL - BT Yahoo! Broadband will combine the strengths of Yahoo!'s web content and services supported by BT's internet access, with BT handling delivery, customer service and billing.

BT Yahoo! Broadband will offer a raft of new and exciting applications, not available elsewhere, in the first truly integrated service of its kind in Europe.

The alliance is the next step in Broadband Britain, building on the one million ADSL customer mark and delivering services and content which will appeal to a mass market.

Both broadband and narrowband customers signing up to the new package will have the freedom to customise their personal homepage and browser as never before.

Users will benefit from a built in firewall and anti-virus protection to provide online protection - at no extra cost.

Customers can also enjoy a whole range of applications designed to make the most of high-speed access, including interactive gaming across the globe, super webcam and digital photo libraries, the latest videos and music - with access to the largest library of music videos on the web, as well as one-click access to Yahoo!'s world-renowned news, sport and entertainment services and the No.1 ranked Yahoo! Finance.

Email with Yahoo!'s advanced SpamGuard filter and Yahoo! Messenger - the fastest growing instant messaging service on the web - are also integrated into the service.

BT Yahoo! Broadband will be available to new customers from September, and existing BT Openworld broadband customers will move to the new service in a phased programme. Today's announcement follows a limited commercial arrangement by the companies in February this year, for the co-promotion of BT Broadband and Yahoo! premium services.

Pierre Danon, CEO of BT Retail, said: "The alliance is the next step to realising a Broadband Britain, building on the one million ADSL customer mark and delivering services and content which will appeal to a mass market.

"With such a compelling product I believe this will provide a significant boost to our broadband sales." "For customers to get the most out of the internet, several factors are crucial. Access must be safe and fast, use must be personalised and flexible and content must be exciting, engaging and imaginative. By joining with Yahoo! we can satisfy all of these criteria, as well as providing customers with support from two world class organisations."

Duncan Ingram, managing director, BT Openworld, added: "I firmly believe BT Yahoo! Broadband offers a vastly superior customer experience compared to the likes of AOL and Freeserve and will prove hard to beat for combined service and value.

"Both BT and Yahoo! share a common aim - to deliver the best possible online experience. Joining forces will allow us to achieve this, but also makes great business sense by strengthening both of our market leading positions."

Terry Semel, chairman and CEO, Yahoo! Inc. said: "We believe that the powerful combination of Yahoo!'s world-renowned brand and BT's leading market position can help drive increased DSL adoption in the UK.

"Our alliance with SBC in the United States has already proved this to be a highly successful business model with the largest growth of any US DSL service in the first financial quarter of this year.

"With this announcement, Yahoo! is the first internet brand to have entered into this kind of deep access and programming partnership in the three largest broadband regions, Europe, Asia and North America.

"Through our global network, Yahoo! serves the largest broadband audience in the world, and we are committed to providing the best broadband user experience anywhere."

The alliance will also offer BT Yahoo! Internet Services, a best of breed narrowband service.

NOTES TO EDITORS

Service elements include:

- Intelligent portal: learns customers preferences & recommends appropriate content
- Integrated parental controls - allowing full parental control over content and sites accessed
- Built in firewall & anti-virus software - to ensure a safe surfing experience
- Powerful anti-spam - to help shield customers from junk & unwanted email
- Microsoft Outlook compatibility - allowing customers to use their offline email client
- 100Mb of web space to store emails and photos
- Photo album software - allowing customers to store, display and manage digital photos
- Web Site Builder - enables quick and easy set up of a web site
- Pop Up Killer - eliminates unwanted pop up adverts when surfing
- Super Webcam software
- BT Openworld will retain customer service and billing for the new service. Customer's contracts will remain with BT and their email addresses will not change

About BT Openworld

MARCONI TO SUPPLY BT WITH KEY BROADBAND EQUIPMENT

BT today signalled its intention to move to a new generation of broadband network based services by reaching agreement with the Marconi Corporation for the prospective supply and installation of broadband exchange equipment. The three year frame contract for Marconi's Access Hub product is expected to be signed shortly.

The agreement, reached after an extensive world-wide search among suppliers to support BT's drive to achieve five million broadband customers, is an early key step in BT's 21st Century Network programme. This will progressively migrate customers for voice, data and internet multimedia services onto an advanced, multi service network

Paul Reynolds, CEO of BT Wholesale, said: "I am pleased that Marconi has been successful against stiff competition from world-class suppliers. BT is building a network for the future, aiming to deliver new services to customers, to foster innovation and to stimulate creativity. Marconi's Access Hub will give us the flexibility to develop advanced high bandwidth services and the ability to meet customers' needs ever more precisely.

"Access Hub meets all our current broadband needs and offers a future-proofed technology platform which is very strong in data, voice, video and element management. It will also give BT a highly competitive whole life cost, and ongoing product support from Marconi.

"This month BT connected its one millionth broadband customer. This deal supports our ambitious drive towards connecting five million businesses and consumers and to help deliver Broadband Britain."

Mike Parton, Marconi chief executive, said: "This agreement with BT represents an important further endorsement of our access technology and will strengthen significantly our competitive position in ongoing discussions with our customers around the world as they evolve towards next generation networks.

Edgar Filing: BT GROUP PLC - Form 6-K

The Marconi Access Hub is a truly world-beating, best in class product."

The Marconi contract, subject to final signature, confirms them as BT's third supplier for DSLAM equipment. They join Alcatel and Fujitsu who have supplied BT for the last four years.

Note to editors:

BT's next generation network programme: BT is embarking on a fundamental and radical transformation of its network and systems to enable customers to move smoothly into the converging digital, multimedia future.

It is designing and building a migration path for customers from the existing narrowband, circuit switched PSTN focussed world to the broadband, packet switched IP based world of the future. Offering a richer communications experience based on choice and personalisation, customers will have the opportunity to tailor their communications requirements to match their needs and lifestyle. This commercially focussed, market driven UK network aims to fulfil customers' requirements today and to anticipate their future needs. Using stringent capital return criteria, BT aims to deliver long-term, structural cost reduction, by progressively migrating onto a simpler, lower-cost network architecture.

Currently BT is testing its ideas against the best in the world, planning a portfolio of products and designing the blueprint of the architecture. Later this year concept and market trials are planned. The progressive deployment of new technological and systems developments will be seen from 2004 onwards.

Marconi Corporation plc is a global telecommunications equipment, services and solutions company. The Marconi Access Hub is a new generation access platform which delivers multiple services, not just high speed internet. It has been designed to carry high speed data, ethernet, video and broadcast TV as well as traditional voice telephony. The Access Hub combines the functionality of Digital Subscriber Line Access Multiplexers (DSLAMS) and the ability to aggregate all traffic types with one of the industry's highest port densities and low running costs. DSLAMS are devices usually located in an operators exchanges. They aggregate DSL connections, typically a pair of copper wires running to each customer's premises, grooming, sending and receiving their traffic to and from the network core. With up to 40 Gbit/s of bandwidth on the backplane, the Access Hub is ideal for operators migrating their network to meet future demand for high bandwidth services.

BT reaches new AA1000 Assurance Standard foR non-financial reporting

BT today published its new social and environmental report and becomes the largest company yet to apply the new AA1000 Assurance Standard for sustainability reporting.

Launched in March this year, the AA1000 Assurance Standard is designed to assure the credibility of social and environmental reporting by guiding companies and auditors through the rigours of non-financial reporting.

Edgar Filing: BT GROUP PLC - Form 6-K

BT chief executive officer Ben Verwaayen highlighting the importance of non-financial issues to business success said: "Our key financial goals of improving cash flow, increasing earnings per share and reducing debt are critical. But fundamental to the achievement of these objectives is the underlying strength of BT as a whole - and this can't always be measured in pound signs.

"Our business strength must be based on passion for customers. However, fulfilling the complete range of customer expectations requires top performance across a full range of issues. Maximising employee motivation, valuing diversity, acting with integrity, reducing our environmental impacts and behaving in a socially responsible manner."

BT's social and environmental results for the 2003 financial year are captured in ten non-financial key performance indicators:

- Customer dissatisfaction reduced by 37 per cent.
- Broadband available to 67 per cent of UK households.
- People Satisfaction Index steady at 67 per cent.
- Increase in the percentage of ethnic minority employees (8.6 per cent) in BT while the percentage of women (24 per cent) and disabled employees (2 per cent) held steady.
- Global warming CO2 emissions now 40 per cent lower than 1996.
- Waste to landfill down 1.1 per cent to 89,878 tonnes and 24 per cent recycled.
- Health and safety significant incident rate down from 126 to 113 per 10,000 full time employees.
- Ethical trading risk assessment questionnaires completed by 31 suppliers and 14 on-site assessments undertaken.
- Community investment of GBP8.2 million plus GBP17.9 million in further funding and support in kind.
- Awareness of our Statement of Business Practice in the UK up from 76 per cent to 83 per cent.

The report has been brought into accordance with the Global Reporting Initiative guidelines and includes a new index to navigate the BT site according to the nine principles of the United Nations Global Compact.
