Restricted Cash

Cash is restricted for the recourse obligation of the Company's factoring of accounts receivable. Amounts are placed in reserve to cover any amounts advanced to the Company not collected by the financial institution. This reserve is adjusted by the financial institution on a monthly basis.

Inventory

Inventory consists of raw materials, work-in-progress and is valued at the lower of cost or market. Cost is determined on a first-in, first-out basis. Costs included in inventories consist of materials, labor and manufacturing overhead that are related to the purchase and production of inventories. Inventories consist of the following:

	July 31,	December 31,
	2003	2002

Accounts Receivable

Accounts receivable are stated at the amount management expects to collect from outstanding balances. Management provides for probable uncollectible amounts through a charge to earnings and a credit to a valuation allowance based on its assessment of the current status of individual accounts. Balances that are still outstanding after management has performed reasonable collection efforts are written off through a charge to the valuation allowance and a credit to accounts receivable. The Company grants credit to its customers without requiring collateral.

The Company factors its trade accounts receivable to a financial institution for a financing fee of 2.65% of the amounts advanced. Under the terms of the factoring agreement, the financial institution advances payments to the company upon receipt of accounts receivable invoices from the Company. Company and the amount originally advanced that has not been received by the financial institution is deducted from the restricted cash account. These transactions are not reported as a sale of accounts receivable since the risk is retained by the Company.

Property, Plant and Equipment

Property, plant and equipment are carried at cost. Depreciation is computed using the straight-line method over the estimated useful lives of the assets, or for leasehold improvements, over the terms of the lease, if shorter. Expenditures for additions and improvements are capitalized, while repairs and maintenance costs are expensed as incurred.

Income Taxes

The Company has elected to be taxed under the provisions of Subchapter S of the Internal Revenue Code and similar state statutes. Accordingly, no provision or liability for income taxes is reflected in the accompanying financial statements. Instead, the stockholders are responsible for income taxes on the Company's profits and losses.

Revenue Recognition

Revenues from sales to customers are recorded when goods are shipped to customers and are reported net of provision for returns, allowances, claims and discounts, which are referred to as charge-backs.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the balance sheet and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Accordingly, actual results could differ from those estimates.

New Pronouncements

SFAS No. 144, Accounting for the Impairment or Disposal of Long-Lived Assets ; SFAS No. 145, Rescission of FASB Statements No. 4, 44 and 64, Amendment of FASB Statement No. 13, and Technical Corrections SFAS No. 146 Accounting for Costs Associated with Exit or Disposal , SFAS No. 142 Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets became effective for the Company during 2002. In addition, the standard includes provisions for the reclassification of certain existing recognized intangibles, reclassification of certain intangibles out of previously reported goodwill and the identification of reporting units for the purposes of assessing potential future impairment of goodwill. The provisions of these standards that are applicable to the Company were implemented on a prospective basis as of January 1, 2002, which has no material effect on the Company s financial statements.
