The following e-mail was sent to all NightHawk Radiology employees on November 9, 2010:

NightHawk Employees and Radiologists,

I am excited to share that the planned combination of vRad and NightHawk has taken an important step forward. As part of any merger like this, government regulators review the combination (under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act) to ensure ongoing competitiveness in the marketplace once the merger is complete. Earlier, we made a pre-merger filing with both the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice in this regard. Yesterday, the waiting period following these filings was terminated, allowing us to move ahead.

I have attached the Press Release sent out earlier this morning.

With this important step behind us, we can now fully mobilize our integration planning efforts, which have been limited to date as we awaited this important regulatory update. Now that this regulatory question is removed, we will move expeditiously in our integration planning efforts. Ultimately, the integration of our two organizations will bring the expertise and resources of vRad and NightHawk together to provide our clients with enhanced quality and service. We will share more information with you regarding the efforts of our integration planning as decisions are made.

A couple of things to keep in mind:

The merger still requires NightHawk shareholder approval. In the coming weeks, a final definitive proxy statement will be filed with the SEC and mailed to the NightHawk shareholders. The shareholder meeting must be scheduled a minimum of 20 business days from the date of the mailing. Thus, our current estimates suggest that the shareholder meeting might take place in either late December or early January.

As we have stressed, prior to the closing of the merger, we are only allowed to discuss integration planning. We are not allowed to take any integration steps. Thus, upon the closing of the transaction, the vRad team will continue to serve existing vRad customers as they always have, and the NightHawk team will continue to serve existing NightHawk customers as we always have. Integration of the combined organizations will be evolutionary and may take up to 12 months.

Looking ahead, our excitement continues to grow regarding our ability to, together, fundamentally improve the delivery of radiologic care across the United States by expanding access, improving quality, and reducing costs. Thank you for your continuing efforts, and I look forward to working together with all of you to make this combination a great success for our clients and for you.

Sincerely,

Dave
