17

Merger strengthens relationships with brokers & cedants

Creation of a credible and sizeable broker-committed underwriter aligns us with reinsurance brokers in competition with top-four reinsurers

Both organizations have a commitment to a broker based distribution

Combined company will be leading broker-based reinsurer by GPW

Putting together sizeable capacity is a challenge in the highly fragmented state of broker market reinsurers. A PartnerRe/ AXIS combination will ensure:

Larger capital base to take sizeable participations for its own account

A larger available selection of 3 rd

party capital providers

The underwriting reputation that will allow brokers to easily fill in following shares

Cedants & reinsurance buyer trends include 1) panel consolidation and 2) expectation of value added service from reinsurance partners

In both cases size, financial strength and expertise clearly matter

Combined company provides similar culture, brand values as well as continuity and longevity in the market

Conservative, Diversified Investment Portfolio

Strong risk cultures and conservative approach to investments reflect primary objective of the investment function as a support to the companies

core (re)insurance activities

Both companies invest substantially more than the value of their (re)insurance reserves in high quality, standard Fixed Income instruments, making sure to match currency and duration exposures of their liabilities

The combined entity is likely to maintain a credit quality of A+ or above and will continue to have its allowable duration range centered at the duration of its liabilities

Both companies emphasize internal management to construct and shape the overall portfolio. Activities such as asset allocation, benchmark construction, risk and compliance monitoring and performance attribution / monitoring are performed internally

The majority of security selection in PartnerRe is done internally. AXIS Capital uses third party managers for security selection in all of its strategies

The combined entity will follow a similar approach. The enhanced scale will allow the combined entity to take greater advantage of the control benefits of internal management and to supplement its capabilities (and gain attendant diversification) through the use of specialist external managers
