Merger Watch

Digital Realty + DuPont Fabros 9.7.2017 Ed. 1,
Vol. 3

Note from Danny Lane,
SVP, Global Operations, Digital Realty

As Hurricane Harvey approached the Houston area last week, we initiated crisis management protocols to make sure our team on the ground was prepared for the storm. And, of course, once Harvey touched down, the first order of business was to determine that our people were safe and out of harm's way, which, thankfully, they were.

It is not news to you that our customers count on us to keep their businesses up-and-running, even in the face of a severe weather event like a hurricane.

During last week's storm, one customer actually went on record to express his appreciation: "[We were] up through the course of this event as were our many customers and we can credit Digital Realty with a large portion of that for the data center they built for us."

I am proud to work alongside honorable people committed to the long-term success of our customers, and excited to be joining forces with the many DFT employees cut from the same cloth that will join us after the closing of the merger.

Over the past few months I have had the privilege of sitting down with the teams that run DFT's 12 data centers spread across the United States—from Silicon Valley to Ashburn, Virginia—and today as I reflect on our response to Hurricane Harvey, it is apparent to me that this is a group of people familiar with braving incredibly challenging conditions to keep the lights on for customers.

Digital Realty made an initial contribution to Houston relief efforts, and will likewise match employee donations through the Matching Gifts Program. It is also an honor to be part of an organization that takes seriously its commitment to the communities it serves.

The community of Houston has a long way to go to recover from this disaster, and I would like to think that our efforts will help in that pursuit. I also believe that once our team is strengthened by the addition of DFT employees after the closing, we will be even more capable of guiding our customers and communities through turbulent times.
